text: "A new exhibition called Unexpected Eisenstein at the Gallery for Russian Arts and Design (GRAD) in London explores some of the lesser-known facts about the groundbreaking Soviet director and the creator of cinematic and propaganda masterpieces such as Battleship Potemkin (1925), Alexander Nevsky (1938) and Ivan the Terrible (1944-46). These epic and patriotic films are in a sense a retrospective of Russia's power. In 1928 a delegation of Soviet filmmakers, including Sergei Eisenstein, took an official journey to the West to acquire experience in sound cinema. ...",
